A SKULL BANJO.

Grewseme Musical Instrument Made by the Paraguay Indians.

Skull banjos are the product of the small country of Paraguay. The Indians of ancient times were constantly engaged in warfare, and their primary aim when thus engaged was to capture the chief of the opposing side. When captured this personage was carried to their camp and there cruelly murdered, and it was from his body that this grewsome, curious musical instrument was made.

After the skull was thoroughly dried the top was cut entirely off.
